What is P+R?

P+R stands for Park and Ride. In Amsterdam, this means that you can park your car affordably and fast on the outskirts of the city and use public transport to travel to the city centre.

After visiting the city centre, you can travel back to the P+R by public transport. The P+R rate covers the time that you spend visiting the city centre, including travel time to and from the city centre (see map at the front).

Parking charges and parking time

You pay your parking charges afterwards. The charge is €1 per 24 hours, except on weekdays before 10:00. At that time, the parking charge is €8 for the first 24 hours.

Parking time for the discount P+R parking rate.

At most P+R locations you can park for up to 96 hours at the discount P+R parking rate. At P+R RAI, the corresponding time is up to 24 hours. You can only park at the Weekend VUmc P+R locations from Monday to Saturday, from 18:00 Friday to 04:00 Monday. At all other times, the normal hourly parking rate applies for the P+R location in question (see info on P+R locations and opening hours).

What should you do?

- Park at one of the P+R parking locations listed in this leaflet.
- Use the special entrance (if there is one) or press the P+R button.
- Travel by public transport to the city centre and travel back by public transport to the P+R location.
- Do not forget to check in and out when boarding and leaving public transport vehicles.
- When making the return trip to the P+R, ensure that your last check-in is at a public transport stop in the city centre. White dots shown on the map at the front indicate the stops where you need to check in on the return trip to the P+R. These stops have a direct connection to a P+R location.

- If you do not use public transport when travelling back to the P+R (i.e. bike, taxi or on foot), you will not be eligible for the discount P+R parking rate.

Travelling by public transport

You can take the bus, tram, metro or train to the city centre and qualify for the discount parking rate.

Regular public transport rate:

You can use any public transport ticket with the exception of the bus tickets that are sold in Connexxion buses. If you are travelling onwards with Connexxion, please use your public transport chip card. Travelling by train? Then use your public transport chip card or purchase a train ticket at the station.

Travelling with P+R GVB cards:

These cards are valid only on GVB bus, tram and metro services. For up to one hour after driving in, you can purchase a maximum of five discount P+R GVB cards at the blue payment machine at the P+R location. One card per person. This is a return ticket for a journey to the city centre and back. Payment can only be made using a debit card (PIN) or credit card (MasterCard and Visa). If you need more tickets then buy extra tickets at the regular rate in GVB buses, trams, machines at all metro stations and at the GVB counters in the stations. Or use your public transport chip card. The regular tickets issued by the GVB will also entitle you to the P+R parking rate.

The P+R GVB card is valid for 1 hour from the time you check in, both on the outward and return journeys. Within that hour you can transfer. If the first hour has passed and you have transferred, the second hour starts automatically, which means that you will not be able to travel back with your card. If that is the case, you will have to use (buy) another public transport chip card. No more than four days may elapse between your outbound and return journeys. Children under 4 travel free of charge.

You are in the city but have lost your public transport ticket, or you no longer have a valid ticket. What then? Buy a GVB ticket at the regular rate.

Be sure to get reliable travel advice. Some journey planners, for example OV929, may suggest routes that will not entitle you to the P+R rate.

You must pay the normal hourly rate for periods outside the maximum period of validity of the P+R parking rate.

Are a lot of people queuing to use the payment machine for P+R GVB cards? You can also travel using a public transport chip card or a public transport ticket at the regular rate.

Are you staying at a hotel outside the P+R city centre? If so, then P+R may not be a good option for you.

Payments, Events/Questions/complaints

Payment

At the location’s parking payment machines, you can only buy P+R GVB cards and pay parking charges using a debit card (PIN) or credit card (MasterCard and Visa).

Events

You will not be able to use a P+R while events are being staged. This could affect P+R RAI and P+R Arena, for example. At www.iamsterdam.com/parkandride you will find details of the dates on which P+R locations are closed in connection with events.

Did something go wrong?

Do you have any questions or complaints about P+R parking? If so, just go to: www.iamsterdam.com/parkandride

Please note:

- A P+R can be full or closed, even if there are still spaces available. This is because a given car park is not always used exclusively for P+R.
- Signs near the motorway exit show whether a P+R has vacant parking spaces, or whether it is full or closed (X).

Tips

Check the website in advance to see if your P+R is open.
What if you return to the P+R location from the city centre, but then want to go somewhere else? Parking at the P+R rate requires you to always pay your P+R parking fee within one hour of checking out of public transport. After you have paid the P+R parking fee, just leave your car where it is, subject to that car park’s regular parking rate. You can pay this fee on departure, using the same parking ticket.
You are in the city but have lost your public transport ticket, or you no longer have a valid ticket. What then? Buy a GVB ticket at the regular rate.
